1. Can you determine what the web site is to be used for by looking over the web site?

Yes I can, from the start it says POS at the top, which is seen often in a lot of business as their "Point of Sale".

2. If so describe what you think the purpose of the web site is.

This website appears to be some kind of checkout/shopping web app. It has numerous ways for user to select items to buy and has an extensive administrative access to allow greater use of the site through the ability for the admin to add not only more products to the website but more categories of products as well.

3. Was it easy to navigate through the web site?

Yes, I found it easy to navigate throughout the website. Each link was clearly labeled and led to the correct location.

4. Did you find any errors while navigating the web site?

Not necessarily an error but more of an oversight, I noticed that in the address entry and payment entry I was able to type whatever I wanted (such as letters in the credit card box, numbers in the zip code box, etc).

5. If so, please list the page URL and cut and paste the error.

Like I said in the last question it wasn't an error but here are the two webpages.

6. What did you like about the web site?

I liked how well thought out this website was and how versatile it is as well. While simple looking it does look like a legitimate web program that could be used by a small business.

7. What did you not like about the web site?

I think it could have been more visually appealing. The "Add New Customer" link had no use to it, didn't seem necessary to be there.

8. Do you have any suggestions to improve the web site?

It would be great if the numerical entry and alphabetical entry text boxes gave errors as well if it detected text when it should have been numerical and vice versa. Adding the ability to upload of photo of a product when inserting a new product would be great. Make the products in the category list stand out a bit more maybe by at least spacing the links out a bit.
